A VICTORY FOR THE CROWING ROOSTERS

More Than One Person Must Make Complaint.

ATTORNEY THOMAS' VIEWS

An Entire Neigaborhood Must Be Annoyed.

Police Regulations Need No Amead ment," Says the Legal Adviser-No Change Will Be Made

A complete victory has been won by the crowing roosters in the matter of the complaint which was recently entered against their daybreak serenades by T. Percy Myers, a local attorney.

Attorney Myers wrote to the Commissioners, stating that the present regulation was inadequate to remedy the al-leged annoyance. He complained that the owner of a rooster could not be fined for ner of Thirty-third and M Street. When maintaining the source of such an annoyance unless a complainant could infuce the whole neighborhood to rise up in arms and make a case against the owner under the police regulations.

in an opinion rendered recently, Attorney S. T. Thomas, the legal adviser to the District Commissioners, rules that the "rooster crowing" portion of the police regulations are effective and need no

"Mr. Myers," he informs the Commissigners "contends that the change of the regulation to its present form in 1898, destroyed the relief afforded, since it subsaltuted for the word 'person' the word | 'neighborhood,' and that Judge Kimball, of the Police Court, has interpreted the amended regulations to mean that the crowing roaster must amony a whole neighborhood, and not a single household in order to make the owner hable to the penalty of the regulation. "Mr. Myers is mistaken as to Judge

Kimball's judgment on this regulation," continued Attorney Thomas, "What the judge holds in prosecutions for crowing roseters is that if the rooster annoys a person or persons in two separate houses in one neighborhood the owner is liable; not that the rooster must be shown to anney the whole neighborhood.

"I think this is a reasonable and fair interpretation of the regulation. As the regulation stood in 1892, when it read 'any' person, it was in the power of one person to make it an instrument of oppression, and I am informed that it was changed for that very reason so as to read to the anmyance of any neighborhood. I do not think it unreasonable for one who not turns it introduced to be required to support his complaint with a witness besides himself. My opinion is the regulation in question should be allowed to stand as it is. It does not need amendment."

James I. Pugh, fr., who is assistant District attorney, and, whose duty it is to handle all "crowing rooster cases" brought into the Police Court, says that the regulations could, of course, becaused to make it possible for one person to complete against the infisance. "As they were originally," he said, "the regulations gave a person the authority to have the unbance abated on his swearing that he was annoyed by the crowing. Ing that he was annoyed by the crowing. This, however, was changed and made the matter a neighborhood complaint instead of the complaint of a single person. The court holds, under the regular ion as it now reads, that the complaints of a person, or persons, from two sepa-rate homes are necessary. I think the regulation should stand as It is, or else probable the keeping of roosters in the Body of George T. Bruner Taken From the Canal-College Boys to Produce "Richelleu."

The body of George T. Bruner, colored, twenty-seven years old, was found in the anal this morning about 9 o'clock at Mc-Donald's wharf at the foot of Thirty-third Streek Bruner, who lived at Martinsburg, Montgomery County, Maryland, came to Georgetown Saturday evening on the canal boat Caille B., Capt. Reld. Shortly after the boat tied up at the wharf Bruner started up toward M Street and was not seen again alive by his two brothers who are employed on the boat. His absence was not noted until this morning when in moving the boat a hat was discovered in the water between the boat and the wharf. The hat was identified as belong-ing to the drowned man and Heary Bruner, one of his brothers, suspecting that his brother had fallen into the water while attempting to board the boat secured a rake and dragged for the body it the vicinity. The body was soon found and taken to the Seventh Precinct Sta-tion, where it now lies awaiting the action seen at that time he had apparently been drinking and it is thought that he met his death shortly afterwards while attempting to go to his quarters on th

GREAT IRON CEMETERY

Method of Interment in Venezuela to Be tion of bakery go Revolutionized by American Enterprise.

It makes you feel like a new person.

The existing system of interment in Caracas has been unsatisfactory for many years. An exhibit of structural ironwork in the warehouse of the American Manufacturers' Association in Cara cas suggested a cemetory built entirely of iron. A syndicate in which American capital is interested was formed to build of iron. A syndicate in which American capital is interested was formed to build the graveyard and the success of the project is said to be assured.

The gemetery will resemble in shape a Greek cross. It will be constructed on the level of the ground, and will rise more than 100 feet. Over the center will be a great iron dome. The interior will be traversed by avenues, opening upon which will be spaces for depositing bodies. These spaces will be arranged in sections for families when desired, and their interior arrangement will resemble burial vaults of the usual type.
